

Charlie Funnell

On 29 June 2013 I had to have my beautiful rescue cat Charlie put to sleep. Guy, at 'Coastways' vets, battled in vain to save Charlie over the past months and weeks but finally on Saturday Charlie had had enough. It was hard letting him go because I loved him so much and there is such a horrible gap that has been left by his death but I have to think of Charlie and what is best for him and not me. I was given the name of 'Chestnut Lodge' by Guy at 'Coastways' and, having read the booklet, I am very impressed.

I will miss Charlie and his cheeky ways and, although I only had him for six years because he was a rescue cat, I like to think that he had a happy six years. His favourite spot was on my bedroom window-ledge. He would sit on his cushions and survey the world outside, especially the birds that sat on the Church roof opposite!

Go over to Rainbow Bridge Charlie and meet up with all the other pets that have been in our lives.

Love, your Mum,
