

Gemma Haigh

Two weeks ago I said goodbye to my best friend of sixteen years and three months, Gemma.

This road has been so hard to tread and the loneliness of it has been unbearable for me. But I hope that for Gemma it has been a wonderful final part of her journey and that she is sitting with her protector again Mr Chip, who is overjoyed to see her as I know he will be. They can now play and run together and my pain is forgotten and I smile with the greatest love, when I have these thoughts, and when I finish my journey I know that you will both be waiting to greet me, and that we will never be parted again.

This is as it should be, this is I hope how it will be.
I miss you Gemma with all my being, but it was right that you should not suffer, as we have to.

Run free now little girl and your spirit will live in my heart and never be forgotten forever.

With all my love
