To My Darling,
Cleo

You're the lucky one.
You have to leave your human behind while you go on great adventures.
Your beautiful soul will go to heaven where you'll get to use your legs again, run around, chase butterflies, and meow to your heart's content.
It's like you'll be a kitten again.
I wish I could see you be young and full of life again.

I already miss you so much; the way you'd lick my face, or poke me for attention.
The way you'd meow with excitement when I came home from a day or a few days away.
I gave you all the love, kisses and cuddles I could give.
I always made sure you were looked after.
I don't want you to ever be in pain and I want you to have the most peaceful send off.

You've been my lovely, little furry companion for 19 years and you'll always, always, always be in my heart.
You're going to have so much fun at the rainbow bridge!
I'll be heartbroken you'll no longer be with me,
but it'll bring me comfort knowing that you're at peace.

You'll always be my baby girl. I'll love you forever, sweetheart
