Our Beautiful Boy Casper sadly passed away on Saturday morning.
He went peacefully and naturally needing no intervention.
I think he'd just 'had enough' of trying to fight this cruel and wicked condition for the past 18 months and his age,
coupled with his extensive weight loss made him too frail to fight it anymore.
Our hearts are broken

We cannot believe we will never see,
or hold our beautiful baby again.
He was the most beautiful, gentle and sweetest dog you could ever know and we cannot imagine our lives without him.
He gave us 12 & 1/2 years of unconditional love and he was dearly loved in return by all that knew him.
Our hearts and home are now empty and we have little constant reminders of him everywhere we turn.
We really don't know how we'll ever get through this living nightmare... Just can't stop crying...
Miss him more than words could ever say.....

We took Our Beautiful Casper to Chestnut Lodge Pet Cemetery in the middle of the Sussex Woods.
He looked so beautiful and peaceful laid to rest.
His 'final passing' took place yesterday morning and we brought him back home last night, where he will stay with us forever

Run free my
